MARY S. HOOPER of Montpelier, Washington County, Democrat, was born in Heidelberg, Germany, where her father was serving in the army. She has lived in Montpelier since 1979 with her husband, Jim Slinkman, who is a physicist working for IBM. They have a son. She has been the executive director of the Vermont Association of Conservation Districts, Deputy Commissioner and Commissioner of the Department of Labor and Industry, the first executive director of the Montpelier downtown association. She served four terms as Mayor of Montpelier and on a number of City Boards and Commissions and other organizations, including Capstone (the regional community action agency), the Hunger Council, and the Vermont College of Fine Arts. Member of the House: 2009–present. Mailing Address: 882 North Street, Montpelier, VT 05602. E-mail: maryshooper@gmail.com. Home Phone: 802 223-2892. Mobile Phone: 793-9512

JAY HOOPER was born in Berlin, Vermont in 1993. He has returned to his hometown of Brookfield, having graduated from Connecticut College as a double-major in history and government, and is now eager to give back to his community on as many fronts as possible. Spending much of his schooling career outside Vermont, Hooper's appreciation for his good fortune of living in this beautiful rural state, which is governed by a unique democracy, has grown tremendously. He broadened his worldview when he spent two and one-half months doing community service work in Africa between his junior and senior years in high school. Hooper spent two summers canvassing for Vermont Public Interest Research Group, mobilizing grassroots activism in opposition to Monsanto and to take action against climate change, big money in politics, and toxins in children's toys. He grew up farming in a family of cheese-makers, whose B-Corp certified Vermont Creamery currently employs about 100 Vermonters. As a fill-in milker at the family farm in Randolph (the largest of his five-town district), Hooper often finds time to discuss the nature of Vermont's greatest agricultural complexities at length, as his older brother, Miles, maintains the role of being Jay's most immediate source of news from the dairy community writ large.

BEN W. JOSEPH I am a retired Vermont Superior Court Judge, having served full time from 1998 to 2010 and part time from 2010 to 2015. During my time on the bench, I presided in Criminal, Civil, and Family courts as a trial judge. In 2009, I instituted the Rapid Referral program in the Chittenden County Criminal Court, which resulted in pre-trial drug treatment for hundreds of defendants in DUI and other substance abuse cases. There was a study of the first 171 young defendants who completed that pre-trial treatment program. In the three years following treatment, 18 percent were arrested again. The recidivism rate for a comparable group of 300 defendants who did not receive treatment was 84 percent. Before being appointed to the bench, I served as a Public Defender in Burlington for six years. During that time I represented hundreds of defendants and completed 32 jury trials. After graduating from law school at the University of Pennsylvania, I worked as a public defender in Philadelphia for three years. Next I was a trial attorney for the U.S. Civil Service Commission, working out of Washington, D.C. In that job, I prosecuted a case against the Governor of American Samoa for interfering in a referendum on the issue of self-government. From 1974 to 1977, I served as First Assistant Special Prosecutor for the State of Pennsylvania, investigating and prosecuting police and political corruption cases. I managed the Legal Aid office for South Philadelphia for three years. From 1977 to 1990, I was in a private general practice of law and, at the same time, I was an adjunct professor, teaching trial practice at the Rutgers Law School in Camden, New Jersey. I am a widower with two children and five grandchildren. My wife was an attorney who worked as a prosecutor in the Franklin County State's Attorney's office for three years and, at a different time, was the Executive Director of the Vermont Network of organizations helping victims of domestic violence. I have lived in North Hero, Vermont, for 26 years.

MIKE MROWICKI of Putney, wasn't born here but grew up in Vermont, or began the process of growing up when he was 27, moved to Vermont, and became a father to Grace ('81) and Maria ('84). Parenting has been the most catalyzing event in life to date and started the shift from blue collar worker to stay-at-home dad, then child care provider, parenting educator, family services worker, and administrator. Those experiences in public service and youth/community development subsequently led to running for the House and serving on the House Committee on Human Services. Giving back, and paying forward, has been a family legacy starting with his grandparents. All four came from Poland after WWI and came to love this country for the opportunity it gave them as immigrants. Outside the Legislature, recent activities include the Marlboro College Graduate School's Nonprofit Management Program, the Vermont Positive Fatherhood Initiative, Putney Food Shelf, Windham Hunger Council, Sojourns Community Health Center board, and being a member of the Putney Quaker Meeting. An avid outdoor enthusiast, Mike enjoys biking, quiet water kayaking, cross-country skiing, and "geezer-basketball." DANIEL NOYES I have lived in Wolcott with my wife, Amy, daughter, Adriana, and son, Ian, for the past 15 years; before that we lived in Hyde Park. I graduated from Johnson State College with a B.S in Environmental Science and have a Certification of Nonprofit Management from Marlboro Collage. For the past ten years I have been employed by Central Vermont Council on Aging as a coordinator and currently as Director of RSVP, a program that engages seniors in the service of others. I am chair of the Vermont Automobile Enthusiasts, a nonprofit that uses money raised from the Stowe & Shelburne Antique and Classic car shows to help high school students transition to secondary education or employment in automotive technology or engineering. I serve as a commissioner of SerVermont, the Vermont Commission on National and Community Service. I am part of the board that is tasked with selecting, monitoring, and evaluating AmeriCorps programs in Vermont and providing opportunities to recognize volunteers and organizations across the State. This program delivers over 200,000 hours of service to Vermont communities. Recently I accepted a position on the board of the Vermont chapter of the Farmers Veterans Coalition. The organization's mission is to engage veterans of all ages in agriculture as a way to gain employment, education, feed America, and, above all, heal. I have worked with volunteers across Lamoille County to build wheelchair ramps for people with disabilities. I partnered with the United Way to start and run the Lamoille Wood Bank. I have engaged our community in providing transportation, companionship, and home-delivered meals. I am very fortunate to work with some amazing volunteers who serve as RSVP Bone Builders class leaders, AARP Tax Prep volunteers, and Osher Life Long Learning committee members. In the past, I served as chair of the Wolcott Planning Commission, coordinator of the Wolcott School ski and snowboard program, board member of the Friends of the Lamoille Valley Rail Trail, president of the Lamoille River Anglers, and as a member of the United Way Impact Council, Osher Life Long Learning Committee, and Lamoille Health and Wellness Council.

JEAN O’SULLIVAN was appointed to the House in 2012 and reelected in 2012, 2014, and 2016. She currently serves on the House Committee on General, Housing and Military Affairs. JOB TATE, 34, was elected to the Vermont Legislature in 2014. Job (pronounced Jobe) is a veteran of the U.S. Navy Seabees and a reservist currently serving with Naval Mobile Construction Battalion Two-Seven. He is a heavy equipment operator, explosives expert, squad leader, and combat warfare specialist who has worked with teams to build vital infrastructure in some of the world's most challenging conditions. Job holds a BA in communications (minor in business) from Houghton College and is—when work, family, and the Navy allow—working to complete his MBA. At Houghton, Job played lacrosse, hosted a radio show, and was the Assistant Resident Director of Shenawana Hall. To this day, Job still proudly identifies as a “Shen Man.” Job was born on December 12, 1979, in Chillum, Maryland, and moved at age nine with his family to Vermont, where his family has had a home for over 100 years. Job, his wife, Lisa, their son, Mendon (and their dog, Hugo) live in Mendon, VT. They attend the Furnace Brook Wesleyan Church in Pittsford, VT and are avid fans, and partakers, of Vermont's great outdoors. Member of the House: 2015–present. Contact: 111 Birchwood Dr. #6, Mendon, VT 05701. Phone: 558-5153. E-mail: job@jobtate.com.

TRISTAN TOLENO grew up in Marlboro and graduated from Brattleboro Union High School in 1989. He was a philosophy and religion major at Wesleyan University, but then chose to follow a passion for food and be a chef. In one busy weekend in 1996, he graduated from New England Culinary Institute and married Susie Webster, also from Brattleboro. They moved to New York City, where he developed his cooking skills and Susie earned her Master of Divinity degree. Following their urban adventure they moved back to Brattleboro, where for its ten years of operation, Toleno was the managing partner and chef of Riverview Cafe. He continues to work in food service as a caterer, having started two small catering brands, Entera Catering and Rigani Catered Wood-Fired Pizza. In 2011, Toleno completed a two-year MBA at Marlboro College. A decade of business experience and activism in many arenas—notably the local food movement and kids’ health—drew him to study sustainability and system change. Susie Webster-Toleno serves as the minister to the Congregational Church of Westminster West and as a hospice chaplain. Their son, Owen, is a senior at Brattleboro Union High School and son, Malcolm, is a sophomore. Member of the House: 2012–present.
